CONSOLIDATION

Meetings in Glendale and Tropic Petition for Election Prepared—Proposed Boundaries

THE CONSOLIDATION QUESTION.

The campaign for a Greater Glendale goes on merrily. The community affected has at last woken up to an active interest in the subject and that is the first essential to a right solution of the question. Up to within a few days nearly all of the public meetings have been held under the auspices of the Improvement Association, the exceptions being two meetings held by the Socialist club, but now Tropic has organized an independent association and the question of the best thing for that section to do will no doubt be discussed thoroughly and a nearly unanimous conclusion arrived at. Generally, outside the city the sentiment appears to be daily increasing in favor of the proposition. Considerable sentiment yet exists which favors annexation to Los Angeles, but this does not appear to be so generally favored as it once was. There are a few who are disposed to favor Tropic's incorporation independently as a sixth class city, but this idea has not many adherents. A strenuous minority in Glendale opposes the project, affecting to believe that there is a scheme back of the movement to move the business and political center of the city away from Fourth street. They are finding it difficult, however, to make out their case so as to gain many converts. The proposed boundary lines of the enlarged city prove as usual, a difficult matter to adjust with satisfaction to all concerned, but the committees working on this problem will no doubt get a fairly satisfactory boundary. The boundary proposed on the east follows the ridge of the hills between Glendale and Eagle Rock, and is an altogether natural and proper one, but we understand that the proponents of the scheme for the incorporation of Eagle Rock want to take into their city all the territory westward as far as Glendale's present limits, and this may result in some difficulties with the chances in favor of the line being left as originally fixed by the committee. Should Eagle Rock fail to form a corporation independently, there is quite a sentiment in that community which favors coming into Glendale.

The various committees on boundary lines completed their work in time for the preparation of the petition which has to set forth the boundaries. As the descriptions are rather technical, THE NEWS will give the boundaries in next week's issue, so that the lines enclosing the territory proposed to be annexed to Glendale can be readily understood. It is quite possible that some changes will be made before the matter comes to a final issue. There is some dissatisfaction over the northern boundary lines which are adopted by the committee, do not make any change in the city boundary between Verdugo Road and the western boundary of the C. E. Thom property near Casa Verdugo. It is thought that for road improvement purposes a small section of new territory should be added. On the East, the committee fixed the line along the top of the hills between Glendale and Eagle Rock, the natural boundary, but as the Eagle Rock people have almost decided to incorporate as a city of the sixth class and want to come territory to the present city limits of Glendale, there may be quite a contest over that desirable territory. Speaking generally, the northern line goes up to within half a block of the Casa Verdugo, thence westward to a point 150 feet east of Central, thence to Randolph street, west to Valley View road, south to north line of Co-operative Building tract, west to Park avenue, south to north line of Oliver's tract, thence south along west line of that tract to Fourth street.

Following is a table of comparative taxes. They are calculated from figures of record in the assessor's and tax collector's offices of Los Angeles county, city and city of Glendale. The base is $1000 assumed as the assessed value of a piece of property located in the county, the increase of 40 per cent of the state board of equalization for 1909 being included.

The state and county tax rate is the same for every condition. The school rate is unchanged by any annexation proceeding. The road tax of the county is not levied within any municipality. Annexation of territory by increasing the area in greater proportion than the cost of government, decreases the city rate. It must be remembered that actual taxes paid unless based on identical or proportionate valuation cannot be compared. Rates and valuations must be taken together, for the total tax depends on both. The table should convince the most skeptical that annexation to Glendale is the most satisfactory solution of the tax question.

MR. McNUTT ANSWERS "GLENDALE PROPERTY OWNERS."

I read a very washy article in the last issue of your paper. It is headed "Make Haste Slowly," and is signed "Glendale Property Owners." If the reader will open his unabridged dictionary at the word "washy," he will get a good idea of the article to which I refer. They say that shadow boxing makes one very tired, so my answer must be brief.

The "Glendale Property Owners" should have signed their names. It would have given their article so much more strength. Doubtless they are the same people who got themselves into Dr. Hutt's office and held the big meeting. Just think of the Property Owners of Glendale getting themselves into a room 10 by 12 feet. Some people might be deceived by the misstatement of facts and the fallacious reasoning of the article, but not many.

The geographical center of the consolidated city would not be at Ninth street and Brand boulevard, and the majority of the voters would not live in that section, and the annexationists are not boasting that they will move the city hall, the public library and everything else down that way.

It is only silly to say that the present Glendale city would be obliged to pay for the street fixing, lights, water and other improvements made in the annexed district. By the law the abutting property owners pay for the street improvements, and for the other civic necessities all property in the consolidated would be taxed alike. The running expenses of the consolidated district might be some greater, but there would be about the same officers to pay and the resources with which to pay this would be increased two or three times, therefore making this item lighter than it is now to the people inside.

The article says, "Our electric system, which is now paying a profit, would at once cease to pay and would become an expense." That is to say, I suppose, that when electricity is run on a wire up Glendale avenue or Brand boulevard or on the streets of the present city it pays a profit, but whenever you get it sidetracked over Central avenue or Tropic avenue or Pacific street or Riverdale Drive, then it loses its force and runs at a loss. And I suppose if they would let it run about in Sycamore Canyon or Casa Verdugo it would be lost entirely. That kind of reasoning must be what is called "horse" sense. It is certainly not human.

"In taking a new partner into business," the article says, "we must look at his character, and see if he is progressive," etc. Good! The annexationists are the progressives. Most of them were not here when the town was incorporated, but now they loom up in a large body and wish to grow, and are moral and intelligent, good enough to be full partners with the "Property Owners of Glendale."

The article is a libel upon the people of West Glendale and Tropic. They are not obstructionists, as said. West Glendale was wholly a farm and orchard district at the time Glendale was incorporated. Tropic was thinly settled, and never voted upon the proposition. Besides at that time Glendale was not such a good looking proposition as would attract a progressive district like Tropic was.

Glendale hasn't much yet in the way of "civic needs" after five years' trying. She has only her streets, lights and the little brick house where she keeps her fire cart, and they can all be seen and enjoyed by the people living outside the corporation line and without paying.

The article advises Tropic and the outside districts to incorporate, and if they can show ability enough to run their own business, Glendale may then trust them to help run hers. That is the same argument the Southern States used when they tried to break up the Union, but it is too old now to sound well. It never did convince anybody in the North or West.

"Consolidation would be a good thing for Tropic and West Glendale, but not one solid argument has been advanced to show that Glendale would be benefited," says the article. Seems as if that statement had been written by some one who does not live in Glendale and who does not own a foot of land in Glendale, and, besides, written by some one who has never done any thinking. Why, Glendale would always be the center of the consolidated district and every thing done to better the whole would be done to better directly, beneficial to Glendale, and she could never in any way be a loser, but would always be a double gainer.

Glendale has the same benefit from the Union High School as though she owned it herself. The value and convenience of it, the beauty of its looks, is the same to her people, and yet Glendale is paying less than one-third the cost of it. Some Glendale people voted against the High School. Their business sagacity was fully equal to that now exhibited by these "Property Owners of Glendale." These "Property Owners of Glendale" would first fix the business centers and locate and put in all needed civic improvements and afterward annex this outside part. It would cost $25,000 to build a decent library building, $30,000 to build a city hall and equip a suitable fire apparatus, $50,000 for even an ordinary park, and no telling what amount for sewer facilities. These things must be had, and Glendale can scarcely ever have them out of her present small size. If bonds were voted for these things the territory you would annex later would not be required to pay anything for them. It would be unfair and unwise to do it that way. Besides, the improvements would not be sufficient for the larger city and all must be "done over." Who are the "Property Owners" in Glendale? And why do they desire their city to remain small and insignificant? Opportunity slighted brings certain regret. At our door is an opportunity to make Glendale a large and prosperous city, equal to Pasadena or Hollywood with all their attendant blessings. There are not two sides to this matter. It is only a question as to whether Glendale shall remain a small, inferior town or become a large city of great influence and importance.

P. S. McNUTT.

The Glendale Valley Improvement Association held a special meeting in Filger Opera House last Thursday evening, which, as is usual with these meetings, was well attended. A piano duet played by Miss Lillian Ward and Miss Anna Addison was the first number on the program and was appreciated fully by the audience, although, as subsequent events proved, the spirit of harmony that it evoked did not prevail until the end. Mr. W. C. Wattles spoke on the subject of Improvement Associations, and stated the objects of this one; the membership is large, but it is very desirable that its number be greatly increased so as to add to its usefulness. Mr. John Robert White, Jr., Mayor of Glendale, spoke in a good-natured vein upon the subject of consolidation, and advanced some strong arguments in favor of the "Greater Glendale" idea. Mr. P. S. McNutt followed Mr. White and in an argument of nearly an hour's duration covered the ground very fully, making quite clear the advantages promised to both "inside" and "outside" by consolidation. He called attention to the fact that the main argument put forth both by the "Ins" and the "Outs" is that the move will increase taxes, but that the methods of arriving at this conclusion are entirely opposed, indicating that there is no real basis for it. He did not, however, claim that there would be no increase in taxation to those who came into the corporation; on the contrary, he and others expected to pay something extra in the way of taxes, but they expected to get something for it. As for those now within the limits of the corporation, he could not see how, with twice the valuation in property to be assessed and a city government which could not be much more expensive than the present one, there could be any increase. In the interval between these speeches, Misses Lillian and Birdie Shropshire gave an amusing dialogue in a clever manner.

After a brief recess, to obtain the signatures of new members, the chairman, Mr. J. W. Usilton, called Mr. L. L. Clotworthy to the platform and had him read and comment on a communication on a communication appearing in the Los Angeles Express of that evening giving a report of the organization of an "Independent League" in Glendale for the purpose of preventing the absorption of the city by the "outlanders." Mr. Clotworthy commented rather sarcastically upon this item, which he designated as a "joke," and it was evident to the most casual observer when he stepped down that the sweet spirit of harmony had spread its wings and got out at the windows.

Sidney Dell, Esq., immediately asked the privilege of the floor, which, being granted, gave him the opportunity of declaring himself in favor of annexation, but at the same time being in thorough sympathy with the anti-annexationists—his friends, who were responsible for the "Independent League" output. Mr. Dell proved himself a real orator and punched the straw man set up by his friends in a perfectly inhuman manner, not only in good and fervent English, but with just Latin, provided by "Aristides the Just" and his compatriots of those good old days when they used to make some how just for idle pastime. After the applause subsided, Mr. Dell, in imitation of "Old John Burns of Gettysburg," who shouldered his rifle and left for home as soon as the battle was over," also retired. He and a dozen or more "antis" who had also faded away, missed the only real chance of getting their money's worth out of the entertainment, by leaving so early. Mr. Fram of Tropic, who, from being strongly opposed to consolidation, is now one of its most earnest and able advocates, made a strong appeal for it, believing that it is a movement designed to work great advantage to this whole section. Mr. J. C. Sherer then made a brief address, which he stated was in the nature of "personal privilege." At one of the oldest residents of the "East Side," he objected to having the impression go forth that the spirit of the Express article represented the feeling or sentiments of the people of Glendale. He explained that the meeting alluded to was merely a caucus of persons known to be of one opinion in the matter and by no means representative. He protested against making the matter the football of prejudice and sectionalism, and wanted to see it lifted up to the plane of pure reason.

If it is a good thing, let us support it; if it is thought to be undesirable, let us have reasons to weigh it with—not merely suspicions. Mr. T. W. Watson assured the meeting that the Express article did not correctly report what transpired at the meeting alluded to and conveyed an entirely wrong impression.

Mrs. W. C. Fraley and Miss Ruth Byram treated the audience at this point to a fine vocal duet, and then the meeting adjourned.

THE TROPICO MEETING.

Some of the antis concluding that they would like to have a meeting of their own, called one for last Friday evening at Logan's hall. Every seat was filled and a number of spectators stuck to the wall, ornamenting it properly. Mr. Davis presided. Mr. Fram was one of the first speakers of the evening and came pretty near being the last, for he was several times on the stage. The three propositions were discussed from various standpoints, annexation to Los Angeles, annexation to Glendale and a separate corporation of the Sixth class. Mr. Fram having spoken twice on the subject without indicating which proposition he favored, was requested by Mr. N. C. Wells to indicate his preference which he still fought shy of. He did not seem to care so much as to where Tropic went, nor when nor how, but he did want a charter, a referendum, recall and all the up-to-date, automatic machinery which enables the citizen to stay at home and just press the button—although he did not put it just that way. Altogether Mr. Fram seems to be in favor of going into Glendale.

Mr. W. C. Wattles spoke in favor of consolidation and proved his points as he went along to show that this is the only logical solution of the question. The chairman stated that he had visited San Pedro for a day and interviewed a number of business men, finding, contrary to general belief that the absorption of that part by Los Angeles is generally popular and that it has resulted in decreasing the number of saloons from sixteen to six—or something like that. Mr. Fred Deal stated in reply that he had recently spent three weeks in the same place and that his observations led him to a conclusion quite contrary to that of Mr. Davis and he is quite sure that the number of saloons there is nearer sixteen than six (approximately, again).

The old question of taxes came up and Mr. Watson was called upon. He presented the figures he has given many times before, proving that annexation to Los Angeles would mean an immediate increase in taxes and very remote benefits. Mr. Rudell offered a resolution to the effect that it was the sense of the meeting that consolidation with Glendale is desirable. The chairman ruled it out of order on the ground that Mr. Rudell does not reside in Tropic. Thereupon Mr. Meyers, who does reside in Tropic, made the same motion, but it got lost in the shuffle and the talkfest proceeded. Mr. E. S. Ayres opposed the movement on the ground that public improvements can be made cheaper by a private individual than by a municipality and further because he does not think that people should be compelled to make them anyhow. As there had been intimations that the Glendale people had nefarious designs against the people of Tropic, Casa Verdugo and Eagle Rock, Mr. Sherer wanted to know whether if the three thousand in Glendale were willing to trust the four thousand outside, should not the four thousand be willing to take their chances with the three thousand? At a late hour there were still a number of citizens whose systems were unrelieved of the pressure of talk, but the meeting had to close. Previous to adjournment, however, a motion prevailed to make the association permanent under the name of the Tropic Improvement League. Adjournment was made for one week at the same time and place.

Glendale never celebrated Labor Day so generally as on Monday last. Every place of business was closed. The people began to assemble at the park by ten o'clock and from that time until two or three, the cars of the Glendale and Eagle Rock road were crowded. At three o'clock when the speaking began there were probably 2500 people on the grounds. The Glendale band under the direction of Mr. Horn furnished good music. Many of the visitors brought their lunches and enjoyed a picnic dinner in friendly groups. A delicatessen stand did a good business, as did the other concessions. The speaking began about three o'clock. Capt. H. L. Clotworthy was the first speaker and talked on the subject of consolidation. He commented seriately on a communication from "Glendale Property Owners" which appeared in the last issue of THE NEWS, showing its fallacies and misstatements. He was followed by Mr. Phillips of Los Angeles who appeared in place of Hon. Lee Gates who was expected to be present. Mr. Phillips is an eloquent talker and commanded the close attention of the audience as he dilated upon the advantages which a large municipality has over a smaller one, but he dwelt especially upon the necessity for harmony and singleness of purpose in a community which nature has so signally favored as that which he saw represented before him.

Immediately after the speaking, the dancing began on the new floor which Mr. Pirle had had men working on for twenty-four hours in order to have it ready for the occasion. The floor is 30x60 and is to be the basis of a pavilion of permanent character with single roof and windowed sides where dancing may be indulged in at any season. It proved its popularity, for it was in continuous use until a late hour.

The petition for consolidation which is to be presented to the city trustees requesting that an election be called, was put in circulation at the park and a large number of signatures secured.

There were two games of baseball on the park grounds, details of which are given elsewhere. They drew a big crowd, the bleachers being unable to accommodate all demands upon them.

The petition to the Glendale trustees can be seen at the residence of Mr. J. W. Usilton, Seventh and Brand, where any one desiring to sign it, may do so. Only residents of Glendale City may sign.

TROPICO MEETING.

At Logan's hall next Friday evening. The question of consolidation will be discussed from both sides and an interesting time is anticipated. Everybody invited.

Some Statistics for the Three Districts

Glendale assessed valuation, $1,936,446; special tax called for $3500.
Tropic, assessed valuation, $804,810; special tax called for $1750.
West Glendale, assessed valuation $954,587; special tax called for $500.
Glendale, average attendance, 364; census children, 570; bonded for $25,000.
Tropic, average attendance, 198; census children, 322; bonded for $17,000.
West Glendale, average attendance, 147; census children, 249; bonded for $20,000.

The tax rate for school purposes has not yet been fixed for this year. For 1909 it was Glendale .83; Tropic .76; West Glendale .83.

Until the law was changed by the last legislature no special tax could be levied for school purposes without the consent of the voters of the district. As it stands now, the trustees of the district call for whatever sum they deem necessary and the supervisors usually levy it as recommended by the trustees.

Clarence Smith, who is attending Berkeley, out of five hundred Freshmen has been elected one of fifty to represent his class in athletics during the ensuing year.

CITY TRUSTEES

Engineer Lynch to go to Arizona on Railroad Matter—Pool Application Brought to a Vote and Refused

All members present. The usual list of demands was presented and referred. Among these was the demand of the Penn Printing Co. of Los Angeles for $48.25 for printing 500 copies of the city clerk's report. (The city saved $5.75 by having this job done in Los Angeles). Reports of city officials were received and filed. In regard to the matters of coming to an agreement with the Pacific Electric company as to lowering the track on Brand Boulevard, the opening of street crossings over the railroad track, etc., which has been held in abeyance for several months, City Engineer Lynch reported that the delay in reaching an agreement had been caused principally by the fact that Mr. Bernard, engineer of the Pacific Electric, who has the matter in charge for that company, has been for some time past in Arizona on account of his health and the time of his return is uncertain. Owing to Mr. Bernard's intimate knowledge of the situation and to the fact that Mr. Lynch and he had been working on the matter together from the beginning, it is very desirable that the work be continued by him. Upon this representation the board instructed Mr. Lynch to go to Arizona and confer with Mr. Bernard.

A communication was received from the Glendale Valley Improvement association, thanking the trustees for having the parkways cleaned up. Application from Chas. E. Hutton for permit to do street work by private contract on Sixth street, was granted. The street superintendent was instructed to move the small railroad station building on Ninth and Brand boulevard, to the nearest point where permission to put it can be obtained. The city clerk was instructed to communicate with the contractor and his bondsmen informing them that the work of improving Glendale avenue from Sixth street south, is not progressing satisfactorily. The clerk was instructed to again notify Mr. Goode to attend to the cilling of the company's track on Glendale avenue.

Trustee Watson offered a resolution rejecting all bids for improvement of Franklin Court and re-advertising for bids for said work. The same was adopted.

A communication was received from J. A. Marvel requesting that the board take up his application for a poolroom license. Mr. Anderson moved that the request be granted. The motion was not seconded. Mr. Watson thereupon moved that the request be not granted. This motion was seconded by Mr. Lane; the vote resulted as follows: Ayes, Lane, Watson, White; Noes, Anderson; not voting, Coker. The clerk was instructed to communicate with the Verdugo Pipe and Reservoir Co. requesting that their reservoir be cleaned every two months. The resignation of Street Superintendent Sinclair was accepted. A resolution was passed appointing a street superintendent. (Understood to be temporarily the city engineer). An ordinance was taken up and passed first reading, defining a district within which poles and overhead wires for various purposes are prohibited. The clerk was instructed to send a copy of the same to the various utility companies interested. A joint meeting of the board of trustees and the library board was arranged for Monday, Sept. 12th, at 7 p. m., at the city hall. Mrs. Eleanor R. Blackburn and Mrs. Lillian S. Wells were appointed members of the library board for the ensuing year to succeed themselves. An ordinance passed first and second reading establishing rates to be charged for electricity.

ICE grain, hay, coal, wood, poultry supplies, stock food, horse and cow remedies. Full weight and No. 1 goods. Valley Supply Co., 308 Brand Boulevard. Phones, Sunset 1811, Home 192.

AT CANYON CREST.

Tuesday afternoon Mrs. James H. Wells was hostess to a merry crowd of young people gathered together on the lawn at Canyon Crest in honor of Mrs. Pingey and her Girls Study Club of the Home of Truth and its friends. A delightful afternoon was spent out of doors where light refreshments were served, after which the guests adjourned to the house for the purpose of hearing Miss Dean relate several stories which were told in the delightfully characteristic and inimitable manner which Miss Dean alone possesses so that tale after tale was called for.

Honor guests were Miss Susanne Dean and Mr. W. W. Raymond of Los Angeles.

GLENDALE'S BAND.

The Glendale Band has five rehearsals to its credit, each one showing marked improvement. Three new members have joined the ranks: Leo Goode, snare drum; D. Bartlett, base drum, and Harry Wells, cornetist, making the total membership fifteen. Their first public appearance at the park on Labor Day proved that considerable hard work must have been put in during the short time of their organization.

It will pay you to trade at Valley Supply Co. 308 Brand Boulevard because full weight is guaranteed and quality is assured.

GLENDALE, CAL., SEPTEMBER 9, 1910

Three holidays in a week—now when we get to the time when there are seven, will the professional Weary Willy be king?

Fall weather came to Southern California this year in strict accordance with the Almanac. Commiseration is extended to the ice cream and cold drink merchants.

This paper predicted two years ago that the "Insurgents" would control the next National Republican convention. We are not yet preparing to hedge, although we may incur some against the insurgents.

Not many know it, but there was a Republican state convention at Sacramento this week. They made Meyer Lissner chairman of the state committee. Meyer can give Walter Parker points on politics and ought to be able to elect Johnson if anybody can.

The outrage last week in Los Angeles committed by Union Labor sympathizers when they attacked a body of non-union men who were carrying the dead body of a comrade away from the place where he met his death, should meet with the severest condemnation by decent citizens everywhere, and if the labor unions would stamp their disapproval upon such murderous acts they should do so by public words of condemnation and by refusing to furnish the wretches who committed the deed with free lawyers to defend them.

We sometimes get words which are not entirely commendatory, but it rejoices us that there are others, as witness the following which comes from a valued subscriber, with his yearly remittance:

"I will take this opportunity to state that I heartily endorse what Mr. Sydney Dell wrote on the subject of 'The Local Paper' in one of the recent issues of the NEWS. A clean, interesting, clearly printed paper like the GLENDALE NEWS should find a place in every home of our beautiful valley. It keeps one in touch with what is going on in our immediate vicinity and the publisher should receive the encouragement he deserves for making the paper as readable as he does."

NEW IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION

THE NEWS congratulates Tropic and Casa Verdugo upon the formation of neighborhood improvement associations. Particularly at this time when the question of consolidation is an absorbing one, every section should show the public spirit of its citizens by affording an opportunity for the discussion of this and other live subjects in which they are interested. No one has any reason to fear the result in regard to any public question openly and fairly discussed and as a consequence understood by the people interested. This paper while heartily and consistently in favor of the consolidation of this whole community in one municipality, desires above all things at this particular time that the people should endeavor to learn all that they can about the matter so that their decision cannot be questioned but shall be recognized as that of the majority. Success to the improvement associations.

TAFT AND THE TARIFF.

President Taft's stand in regard to the tariff must command itself to all who wish to see that vexed question handled in a manner that will not be a menace to business interests and will achieve the desired result. It was due to his insistence that the Payne-Aldrich bill contains a provision for the appointment of a tariff commission, the duty of which is to collect data and upon recommendation of the president submit to congress desired changes in schedules. The changing during a single session of congress of an entire tariff bill consisting of hundreds of schedules, is a task that no body of men, however able and earnest, can successfully accomplish. It gives opportunity for trading which is pernicious in the extreme and always depresses business by reason of the uncertainty of the outcome. Whatever insurgency in the party now exists resulting from differences of opinion in regard to this important matter, promises to be dissipated by this action of the president, and it should be remembered to his credit that this is no new position which he has assumed, but is consistent with his stand from the beginning.

CONSOLIDATION.

The movement for a larger Glendale is one consistent with the ideas expressed in THE GLENDALE NEWS with the first issue of this paper under its present management, three years and eight months ago, and with the views expressed by its editor many times and on many occasions any time during the last twenty-five years. We have always deprecated the frequent exhibitions of sectionalism that have from time to time cropped up in different portions of the community, not confined by any means to any one locality, but always deplorable where ever found. It is perhaps natural that we should desire that the best of everything should come as nearly as possible to our own doorstep, but insistence upon it to the end is rarely defensible. The present opportunity to obliterate all imaginary lines that divide the community into groups, every one for itself and to that extent against its neighbor, promises so much for our harmonious working together for the good of all that we cannot believe that the opposition to it can possibly command the support of a majority either within or without the corporation. There will several weeks elapse before the question comes to an issue at the polls, and in the meantime we insist that any arguments based upon alleged "schemes" for political control or anything else unworthy of good citizenship, be accompanied by some evidence more tangible than mere hearsay and suspicion.

As a general thing these arguments answer and refute themselves, they are so clearly imaginary and unreasonable. It is the duty of every citizen in the section affected to intelligently inform himself in regard to all the details of the subject and to draw the line as correctly as possible between fact and fancy. And keep in mind the precept of the great Teacher, "Judge not, that ye be not judged."

WHAT SHALL WE DO FOR THE YOUNG MEN?

The good people of this and other towns are given to spasms occasionally in regard to the condition of the young men within their walls, and these spasms are likely to result in prohibiting something—in one place a pool room and in another a picture show. But these alleged temptations being removed, interest apparently ceases and the spasms are allayed. Glendale is typical of a class of growing communities in Southern California, built up by a high grade of citizenship and in which the churches and the schools are perhaps the principal factors in the making of good citizens. We say perhaps, because still cherishing a hope that there is still another and more important one—the home. But the tendency of the times seems to be away from the old-fashioned methods of instilling into the youthful mind the principle that good citizenship is built upon, and of depending more and more upon the church and the school.

But even if home training is in the main just what it ought to be, there will always be a considerable number of boys in any place where a considerable number of people live, who, not being entirely fortunate in their home surroundings or far removed from their home, have need of something that neither the church nor the school can supply. One of these essentials is amusement. In some homes well meaning parents are over-strict and out of sympathy with a natural desire in the young for some kind of pastime aside from the strict routine of duty. It is a natural want, and the opportunity for its indulgence should be supplied. For the young men of the town this demand should be ministered to. For a concrete example take the plea of a young man, as presented to us the other day:

"Where is a fellow to go in Glendale in the evening? The picture show is all right, but we can't stay there all the time. Some of the boys lounge about the livery stable, others worry the barber or hang around in groups on the street corners. Then a lot of them go into Los Angeles two or three nights in the week and spend a lot of money. There is no place open to us. If there was a pool room or a bowling alley or any public place where we could amuse ourselves for an hour or so in the evening it would be a boon. As it is now we must walk the streets, go to Los Angeles or go to bed."

The plea of this young man is reasonable. After the labor of the day the demand for recreation is natural, and any place that puts on the pretensions of a city should do something towards providing it for that quite numerous class of young men who are not fortunate enough to possess homes where everything that they need is provided for them. Here is a chance for philanthropy!

THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

There are thousands of Republicans in California who, while not affiliated with the Lincoln-Roosevelt element of the party, are as sincerely opposed to the domination of the party by railroad influences as the loudest-talking reformer in the ranks of that faction. Many of them have opposed the railroad influence on many a hard-fought field, and their opposition has not always been in vain. Notable instances of their success may be pointed to in the election of Thomas R. Bard to the Senate and in the nomination and election of Governor Pardee. In a number of conventions of the party in Los Angeles in the last twenty-five years the state of the "organization" has been broken and the railroad forces routed, and all of this was done under the now unpopular and derided convention system. This element of the party in all these instances played the part of loyal and independent American citizens, averse to "taking orders" from any individual or combination of individuals, and the principal reason why they are not now allied with the dominant faction is because of the fact that individually they are influenced by the same temperamental characteristics. At the same time they believe in the necessity for organization in order to achieve results and are even willing when the occasion requires to lay aside personal preferences and, if necessary, to delegate power to a few as their representatives to do the work which cannot be accomplished along purely democratic lines. These Republicans as a rule believe in the superior wisdom of the founders of the republic, who built this government upon the basic idea of delegated authority, not of authority exercised democratically by the masses, because they believe that direct legislation by the people, except in a very small way, is a matter impracticable and impossible.

They do not believe that the leaders of the Republican party in California at the present time, represent anything more than a passing wave of protest against conditions which the people believe to be wrong and which they wish to have corrected, but the same protestants will in time come to an understanding of the fact that it is not essential to depart so radically as is proposed, from the methods of government provided for in the constitution.

The overthrow of a political organization within the party because it foolishly depended for power upon the backing of a great corporation, is a result which no good citizen can regret; but it would be a matter for good citizens to regret very seriously if a belief became general that the reform was accomplished by legal machinery rather than by an awakening of the citizen to a sense of responsibility. The power of good citizenship in a republic intelligently directed, is supreme, while the power of mere statutes is a negligible quantity. Because the Lincoln-Roosevelt league still affects to believe that a radical change in the laws is requisite for good government, there is still a very large portion of the Republican party in California which will not follow its leadership in that particular. The next session of the legislature promises in view of the above described conditions, to be one of surpassing interest, as it will witness a struggle between the populist element in both parties and the conservatives.

TRANSFER OF CONSOLIDATED WATER CO.

The control of the Consolidated Water Co. and the Verdugo Ranch has passed from Messrs. Pirtle & Griswold to another owner, whose name is not announced, but who is evidently Mr. Hugh Glassell. Whether Mr. Glassell, who has long been an owner of water interests in Verdugo Canyon, has any partners in the property we do not know. Mr. Glassell, although not owning a majority of the stock, has practically controlled the Verdugo Canyon Water Co. as its president for several years, and has been gradually acquiring more stock and water rights all the time. There is no reason to suppose that, for the present at least, there will be any radical change in the management of the water company or the ranch property. Of the latter, including Verdugo Park, Mr. John A. Pirtle has the management for a period of two years or more yet. We understand that Mr. L. C. Brand, whose name has been connected with the property, has no interest in it whatever.

meeting will be held Tuesday evening next at the Casa at which time the election of officers will take place. All residents of the section north of the Glendale city boundary are invited to be present. At Tuesday night's meeting the matter in which the greatest interest was evinced was that of opposition to the proposed annexation of Glendale. At the close of the meeting all present were invited to partake of Mrs. Sowl's hospitality and the coffee, tamales and fruit called forth a special vote of appreciation for that lady's thoughtfulness.

"BACK TO THE FARM"

VII.—How Some Men Have Succeeded on the Farm.

By C. V. GREGORY.

(Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.)

There are many millionaire farmers, but most of them have made their millions elsewhere and are spending them on rural estates merely to gratify a fancy. There are a number of men, however, who have made millions on the farm. It is not such an easy thing to do, but the success of these men shows some of the possibilities that the farm holds for the man who desires to make money in large amounts. Probably the most notable of the men who have made fortunes on the farm is David Rankin. When David Rankin was married he handed the preacher his last five dollar bill with the remark that now he could start square with the world. He bought land on time and borrowed money to buy cattle. His first purchases were in Illinois. Later he removed to Missouri, attracted by the cheap prairie land that needed only a little drainage to make it yield abundantly. Today David Rankin owns nearly 20,000 acres of this same Missouri land, and it would all sell for $100 an acre. Add to this his cattle and horses and machinery and a few incidentals, such as bank stock and the like, and he has a fortune approximating $4,000,000. This has all been made in farming. Corn has been his specialty, and it has always been marketed in the form of cattle. He has always used the most modern machinery and the best equipment that money can buy. It has been the same with help. His foremen are men who can get results. He furnishes them with automobiles to take them from farm to farm because he has found that it pays in the time saved. He attributes his success to close personal attention and the application of business methods to farming.

Another man who has made millions in farming is Colonel James M. Smith of Georgia. Colonel Smith started raising corn and cotton on a rundown quarter section in Oglethorpe county soon after the war. The first year he lost $400. Last year his net profits were $100,000. In the meantime his farm has increased to 23,000 acres. Colonel Smith was one of the first men to build cottonseed oil mills and make a profit from what formerly had been a waste product. His farm was twenty-five miles from the nearest railroad, but he solved the problem by building a railroad of his own. He has always been a personal friend of all his men, white and black alike. He has provided well equipped schools for both the negro and the white children of his employees. Unlike David Rankin, who never had even a common school education, Colonel Smith is a college graduate. He learned to handle men in the army, and he applied the same organization to his farm work with great results.

Colonel Smith's success has demonstrated what can be done on the farm land of the south. One of his 200 acre farms a year ago yielded 4,800 bushels of wheat and 200 bales of cotton. The wheat sold for $1 a bushel and the cotton for $50 a bale, making a total income from the farm of $14,800. After taking out the expenses there was a net profit of $31 an acre. This might well make even a Mississippi valley farmer envious.

The west has been heralded as the land of opportunity. In the early days, when land could be had almost for the asking and the cattle business was at its best, a young man of the name of Henry Miller started out to make a fortune in the ranch business. Today he is worth $20,000,000. He once announced that he hoped some day to own the whole state of California. In this he did not succeed, although his holdings in California amount to 600,000 acres. He also has large tracts of land in Nevada and Oregon.

The ranch business is on the decline in the west, and what was once one man's cattle ranch is now being cut up to make farms for the hundreds of thousands of land hungry settlers who are pouring into what is still "the land of opportunity." About twenty years ago an Iowa farmer sold a half section of land, paid his debts, and, with seven or eight thousand dollars in cash, a wife and four children, started for Arizona. He located in the Salt river valley, bought as much of the cheap land as his money would pay for and set out to learn irrigation farming. He learned it well and made money. The surplus went to buy more land. He joined the Water Users' association and was influential in getting congress to start the Salt river irrigation project. Government irrigation insured permanent prosperity for the Salt river valley, and today this pioneer farmer who set out to make a fortune in "the great American desert" is worth more than $200,000.

Success in the irrigated districts is not necessarily measured in extensive farms and large bank accounts. A few years ago a locomotive engineer, sixty years old and broken in health, moved from Minneapolis to the state of Washington. He bought an acre of irrigated land, paying $1,400 for it. It contained an apple orchard in poor condition, a house and a few dilapidated outbuildings. The purchase of the land took nearly all the old engineer's savings. He pruned the old apple trees and set out thirty new ones. He sold off a few mongrel chickens that were on the place and bought a pure bred rooster and three hens. After the first year's expenses were paid he had enough money left to put on many improvements. The next year he put money in the bank, and the year after. So well did the acre produce that at the Lewis and Clark exposition at Portland in 1905 it was awarded the prize for the second most productive and best managed farm in the west.

It is instances like this that really show the possibilities of the farm for the average man. Few men can become great cattle kings, and not many can repeat the success of David Rankin or Colonel Smith. But the success of the old engineer on his one acre of irrigated farm land ought not to be so hard to duplicate.

There are men who say land is so high that there is little chance for the man with small capital to get a start. Notwithstanding this more young men are buying farms every year. A dozen years or so ago a young German who had been working by the day in northern Iowa decided to get married. After the ceremony his chief possessions, in addition to a capable wife, were a horse and buggy and $150 in cash. He rented a farm and bought a grade Percheron mare. The price he received for his first few colts opened his eyes to the profits of the horse business. He bought some more mares, pure bred this time. He made money from the start and has nearly enough money laid by to buy and pay for the farm he has been working.

Another young farmer in northern Iowa went into the dairy business six or seven years ago. Dairying was rather a new thing in his part of the country then. Most farmers preferred to raise corn, where they could do most of the work by machinery. Much of the land at that time was badly in need of drainage and was better suited to pasture than to corn growing. A few wet seasons reduced the profits of the corn growers almost to the vanishing point. The young fellow who had put his faith in dairy cows jingled milk pails and put money in the bank. After a few years of milking he bought the farm he was working and paid half cash. The mortgage cannot last long in the face of a prospering dairy business.

The average farmer of the middle west doesn't like to think of farming anything less than a quarter section. An eighty or a forty he considers rather "small business." Nevertheless there are many advantages in the smaller farms. The hired help problem is solved, for the owner can do all the work himself. It is much easier for a man with limited capital to buy a small farm, and the cost of stocking and equipping is less.

O. E. Beadle of Nebraska is one of the corn belt farmers who is making a living on forty acres of land. His average net income is $800 a year. He has a very comfortable house. To rent such a house in the city and live as well there as he and his family do on the farm would cost him $1,500 a year. Considered in that light, his little farm is really paying him a salary of $2,300 a year.

In the east the greatest opportunities are in truck farming. Only a few acres are required, and the returns are large. A certain truck farmer in the vicinity of Boston is making a small fortune on ten acres of ground. He has intensive cultivation down to a science. No sooner is one plant taken from the soil than another is ready to take its place. He has part of his truck farm under glass, so that he can grow crops in winter as well as in summer. Last year his net profits were $1,000 per acre.

The Pardon Paperweight.
Under the headline "A Queer Municipal Gift" a Vienna paper tells this story: "In the year 1899 a private soldier stationed at Sals killed an officer of his regiment and was condemned to be shot. Comrades who knew the extenuating circumstances, friends, priests, relatives—all pleaded in vain for mercy. The colonel in whose hands the matter rested insisting on the death penalty. The day came and the man was taken to the place of execution. Six members of his regiment, armed with rifles, one of which contained a blank cartridge, took their places as executioners. The man's eyes were bandaged and with arms securely pinioned he stood ready for the volley, shouting 'Comrades, aim well!' when a mounted courier dashed into the crowd waving a white flag, crying 'Pardon!' He was Lieutenant Baron du Mont, with the colonel's pardon, which would have been useless had it arrived one minute later. The municipality secured the five bullets from the firing squad, had them silvered and mounted in the form of a tiny pyramid on a silver plate, and this, suitably inscribed, is known as the 'pardon paperweight,' the only one of its kind."

The Useful Crocodile Fish.
In the rivers and lakes of the Mexican state of Tabasco there swims a fish known as the "crocodile fish" which is most useful to man. The skin of the crocodile fish, if properly cured, may be utilized for any of the purposes for which the lighter weights of leather are employed. The oil of the crocodile fish is a perfect lubricant and also used for softening leather. In addition to its qualities as a lubricant and emollient, the oil possesses medicinal qualities for which a superiority to the finest of Norwegian cod liver is claimed. The flesh of the crocodile fish is extensively used by the natives as food and highly relished by them as one of the delicacies of the country. Crocodile fish range in length from ten inches to four feet, and when dried assume an ashen hue, with lighter shadings of a bluish tint.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Poor Human Nature.
The woman who had succeeded in that rather difficult task—making a boarding-house pay—was confiding to a friend some of the tricks of the trade.

"While you must never allow your boarders to get too far behind in their payments, it is also true that you will profit considerably by allowing them a little leeway. So long as you are sure of your money it pays a landlady to have her boarders a week or two behind in their board."

"I don't see that," interrupted her friend.
"Well, I'll tell you," continued the landlady. "When a man owes back board you have him at a certain disadvantage. Not one in a hundred under such circumstances has the nerve at mealtimes to ask for a second helping.—New York Times.

The Human Lobster.
The lobster has always appealed to the Englishman as affording a nickname for his fellow Englishman. "Lobster" was a favorite term of abuse among the Elizabethans, though it is only conjectured that an allusion to red faces was conveyed. As signifying a soldier, "lobster" originated in the civil war, being applied to the Roundhead cuirassiers, as Clarendon explains, "because of the bright iron shells with which they were covered." Afterward the allusion was transferred to the soldier's red uniform. But that was the "boiled lobster." The "raw lobster" was naturally the man in blue, the policeman. In earlier days we find Grosse explaining that "to boil one's lobster" meant for a clergyman to become a soldier.—London Chronicle.

The Man With the Iron Mask.
The Man With the Iron Mask was a mysterious French prisoner of state, whose identity has never been satisfactorily established. He was closely confined under the charge of M. de St. Mars at Pignerol in 1679, at Exilles in 1681, at Sainte-Marguerite in 1687 and finally was transferred to the Bastille in 1698, where he died on Nov. 19, 1703, and was buried the following day in the cemetery of St. Pant in the name of Marchail. Dumas made him a twin brother of Louis XIV.

A Volcano.
"What is a volcano?" asked the teacher.
"A mountain with a fire inside," said one.
A smile of comprehension spread over the puzzled face of the smallest pupil as he asked surprisedly, "Is that a mountain range?"

A Pungent Player.
The comedian had his benefit and thankful for the patronage of "kind friends in front" let off this impromptu, which was applauded:
Like a grate full of coals I glow,
A great full house to see,
And were I not grateful, too,
A great fool I should be.

More Important.
"See here, waiter! I found a collar button in this pie!"
"Didn't see nothin' of an umbrella, did yo', boss? Dah was one los' heah las' night."—Scribner's Magazine.

Lead Pipe.
Lead may be melted and when cooled to the solidifying point may be acquired. In this manner lead pipe is made.—Mining World.

Apologies only account for the evil which they cannot alter.—Cuyler.

Thackeray's Satire.
Thackeray created quite erroneous impressions of himself by often indulging in irony in the presence of people who were incapable of understanding it. One curious instance which he gave was this: Thackeray had been dining at the Garrick and was talking in the smoking room after dinner with various club acquaintances. One of them happening to have left his cigar case at home, Thackeray, though disliking the man, who was a notorious turf hunter, good naturedly offered him one of his cigars. The man accepted the cigar, but, not finding it to his liking, had the bad taste to say to Thackeray, "I say, Thackeray, you won't mind my saying I don't think much of this cigar?" Thackeray, no doubt irritated at the man's ungraciousness and bearing in mind his turf hunting predilections, quietly responded, "You ought to, my good fellow, for it was given me by a lord." Instead, however, of detecting the irony, the dolt immediately attributed the remark to snobishness on Thackeray's part and to the end of his days went about declaring that "Thackeray had boasted that he had been given a cigar by a lord."

Maternal Instinct.
"Children that yell like that ought either to be gagged or kept at home," remarked the irascible gentleman with the white beard to the bus conductor.
"And faces like the one you're scarin' people with," chipped in the mother of the noisy infant, "oughter be made into door knockers or sent ter the chamber o' horrors."

The gentleman with the patriarchal face fungus took a brick red complexion. "I know it's awkward at times"—he commenced.
"It's more'n awkward; it's nothin' short o' 'orrible," snapped the lady, as she once more glanced at the sorry elderly man's set of features.
When the rest of the passengers tittered audibly the old gentleman came to the conclusion that it behooved him to speak to the point.

"I mean the child"—he tried once more.

"And you didn't mean it no good," returned the lady, "else you wouldn't a looked at it!"—London Ideas.

The Expense of a Wife.
A wife is a decided addition to the demands upon one's purse. In that sense, however sensible and managing she may be, she is expensive. But everything worth having has its price of one sort or another, and there are some things which cost much without which life is hardly worth living.

Said Thiers: "Most men contemplate making some self denial when they marry. They think they will give up such and such expensive pleasures. Later on, when they discover that they cannot do so, and at the same time they lack the means to indulge, they complain that it is the extravagance of their wives which causes the inconvenience."

Which wise saying is applicable to men in other countries besides that of France.—New York American.

Reiterated.
Edmund Kean was playing in "Richard III." and the part of Catesby had to be taken by a low comedian, who sauntered on to the stage at the wrong moment and uttered the famous words, "My lord, the Duke of Buckingham is taken." In the wrong place. Edmund clinched his fists in rage, but otherwise took no notice of the remark.

Later the comedian repeated the words in the right place, and when the king expressed surprise at the news Catesby folded his arms, walked boldly down the stage and remarked to the great actor in loud tones:
"I told you so before, Mr. Kean, but you wouldn't believe me."

Nonroyal Headgear.
One of the attaches of the American embassy at London tells a story where Michael Joseph Barry, the poet, who was appointed a police magistrate in Dublin, was the principal figure. There was brought before him an Irish American charged with suspicious conduct. The officer making the arrest stated, among other things, that the culprit was wearing a "Republican hat."

"Does your honor know what that means?" was the inquiry put to the court by the accused's lawyer.
"It may be," suggested Barry, "that it means a hat without a crown."—Harper's Magazine.

Saving His Feelings.

THE INTERNATIONAL SOLAR UNION.

With the assemblage of illustrious men of science recently gathered on Mount Wilson, the attention of the entire civilized world is once more centered on Southern California, of which fact—not an idle boast—we may well be proud. The mere inspection of the names of these gentlemen reveals the cosmopolitan scope of the gathering, and the daily press discloses the fact that they are great men in their special lines. They have all made their mark. They are banded together in an association called "The International Union for Co-operation in Solar Research." They represent the newest phase of astronomical science, and they are not strictly astronomers in the old meaning of the term. Up to about 25 years ago, astronomy concerned itself almost exclusively with the masses, motions and distances of the celestial bodies, and about that time a certain wise man gave it as his opinion that astronomical investigation had pretty nearly reached its limit. We could never hope, he thought, to gain any intimate knowledge of the composition or constitution of the sun and stars. At that very time, however, a new and marvelous instrument was just beginning to attract attention. This was the spectroscopic, by the use of which we are able to determine the chemical composition and the physical condition of any body by the spectrum of light emitted by it, and allowed to pass through the instrument, under certain conditions. This new science called opens up a vast field of fascinating and important research, and being grafted on to the old science of astronomy, gives the latter an apparently unending task, for not content with merely tabulating the distances, masses and motions of the sun and stars, we are now discovering what they are made of. Distance makes no difference to the spectroscopic, and if we can only get a faint glimmer of light from the most distant star, we can pass it through the instrument, and the camera, recording its spectrum, will make it reveal the secret of its nature.

But the primary object of study among the members of the International Solar Union is, of course, the great central luminary of our system, the source of light and heat, and the visible sustainer of life and all kinds of activity on this earth—a truly worthy object for the study of the human mind. The sun, however important and supreme he may be in relation to us, is nevertheless but a minor star in relation to the great universe of stars, and it is by studying them, that we have learnt much of the constitution of the orb of day.

Astrophysical science has made great strides already, although only still in its infancy, and we have well based theories of the wonderful nebulae revealed by the telescope, and photographed by the camera, which disclose world-substance in all stages of development, from that apparently just condensing to form a dense nucleus, through the infinite gradations of cloud, liquid and solid, with accompanying differences of light-colors, from the intense white to yellow, and lastly to red, which characterizes the beginning of the latest stage in the life history of a star. And conversely, by the study of the sun, with telescope, camera and spectroscopic, we may learn much of the stars by inference and analogy; as it is almost certain that the processes going on in the sun are identical in kind with those at work in the stars. We are told that our sun is now in the last stage of his career, which began untold ages ago, and yet has many millions of years of vigorous life to cheer and sustain the inhabitants of his circling attendants.

It is a curious fact that the spectroscopic, though able to reveal the composition and constitution of the distant stars, can tell us little or nothing of that of the planets, though the latter are almost within our reach in comparison. The reason of this is that the planets do not shine by their own light but send us only the reflected light of the sun. But when we know that the sun, the distant stars and the earth are all composed of practically the same substances, it is a safe inference that the planets do not materially differ from the other bodies of the universe.

The history of the discovery and application of the spectroscopic forms a most absorbing and interesting chapter of the conquest of the intelligence of mankind over the amazing problems offered by the mysteries of nature, which has been described as the handiwork of God. In that view the members of the International Solar Union in studying the sun, are really but investigating one phase of the nature of the Almighty artificer.

It is probable that most of the discussions in the convention on Mt. Wilson were more or less technical in their nature; popular exposition will, however, doubtless be forthcoming, and your correspondent will duly report same for the readers of the NEWS in due course. X-RAY.

Pricked His Own Bubble.

This story, found in Rev. Dr. Henry H. Jessup's book, "Fifty-three Years in Syria," seems to indicate that religious vagaries are as short lived in the east as elsewhere. A friend of Dr. Jessup, visiting Jerusalem, met a queer looking solitary stranger pacing the streets of the city, accosted him, and after the usual greetings remarked: "You are an American, I infer." "Yes, I am," replied the queer looking man. "And what are you doing here, if I may ask?" "Ah, yes, I'm glad you asked. You see, I've come to preach the new doctrine, that there is to be no more death. If men will only accept it, we'll abolish death, and there'll be no more dying, nor graves, nor coffins, nor funerals. We shall just live right on." "But," said Dr. Jessup's friend, "supposing you should sicken and die, what then?" "Oh," said the man, "that would bust the whole thing!" And it did. The poor delirious apostle died a few months later, and with him his "new doctrine."

Couldn't Think of It.

The handsome young plumber laid aside a piece of lead pipe and, approaching the beautiful kitchen maid, said: "You look awful good to me." "Go on; quit your kiddin'," she replied. "But I mean what I say." "I ain't got any time to listen to you now. Can't you see I'm busy?" "Yes, but what's the use workin' when a fellow wants to make love to you? Say, if I make this job last so I can come back tomorrow will you have your work out of the way so we can talk things over? You're the prettiest girl I ever seen." "If you think you can make a fool of me by such silly talk you're mistaken." "But I mean every word I say. I want you to try to learn to love me." "If you want to make love to me come around this evening. I'll be here." "What! On my own time? What kind of a chump do you think I am?" —Chicago Record-Herald.

Exact Thomas.

Thomas Hoar, the devoted servant upon whom Gilbert White, the English naturalist, depended to carry out his garden plans and to look after his comfort in many ways, was noted for his exactness. Mr. H. C. Shelley, in "Gilbert White and Selborne," gives an amusing illustration.

There was one occasion when Thomas came to report, "Please, sir, I've been and broke a glass."

"Broke a glass, Thomas! How did you do that?"

"I'll show you, sir," he rejoined as he disappeared for a moment. Returning with a glass in his hand, he let it fall on the floor, remarking:

"That's how I broke it, sir."

"There, go along, Thomas; you are a great fool," said his master, adding to himself, "and I was as great a one for asking such a foolish question."

Getting an Autograph.

A Munich boy of fourteen, who had seen and admired many of Rudolf von Seltz's paintings, was anxious to secure the painter's autograph, but did not know how to go about it. After much thought he wrote a letter, stating that he had sent a case of wine to the professor's address, and wanted to know whether it had been received. Thinking the matter of sufficient importance the painter did not write, but called at the address given, met the boy's mother, and the fraud soon became apparent. The boy was thoroughly scolded, and next day received this autograph note:

It often happens here on earth that little rogues to great ones grow. Some autographs for which you're trying can be procured without much lying.

Queer Looking Worms.

New Zealand, Australia, the Samoan and the Solomon Islands as well as portions of the Hawaiian group are the homes of various species of worms with thick, heavy bodies and with a well defined neck connecting the body with a head that is a startling reminder of that of the monkey. In the Sandwich Islands they are called "metakuki," which means "creeper with a child's head." An old New Zealand legend says that at one time they were of immense proportions and threatened the extinction of all human life on the islands.

Irish Wit.

Swift scoffed at Irish "wit" in some biting lines. Nevertheless Irish wit is one of the most precious things. One soon has a surfeit of the professional funny man in England, the pawky Scot, the American humorist. The Irish peasant never disappoints, and with him it is all so naive and natural. —London Saturday Review.

Goodness and Greatness.

Goodness comes from within—from feelings, thoughts and desires resulting in actions. Greatness is the consequence of bold actions, great energy, ambition, enterprise and perseverance.

Impressed Her.

"You will never be able to make her believe that he is a liar." "I wonder why?" "I believe that he once told her she was beautiful." —Houston Post.

Backlog.

Borrowly—The scheme would be a howling success if I could secure the proper backlog, and—Grimsby—The only backlog I am doing this year is out.—Puck.

Integrity of life is fame's best friend. —John Webster.

BASEBALL.

A Record-Breaker.

The Verdugo team outdid themselves Sunday when they won from the Wielands 1 to 0, scoring in the eleventh inning.

The team and likewise the management are certainly to be congratulated for Sunday's game broke all former records for amateur baseball in Southern California, no other game having been carried through nine innings without scoring a run.

The Verdugo team now stands at the head of 169 league teams and can be placed in a class by itself.

Out of eighteen games the Verdugos have been victorious 17 times and the one defeat can be accorded to the fact that during the game three of the positions were filled by substitutes.

J. W. Everett may well be proud of himself for having gathered together such a team.

Line-up: Buttrick, c; Jervels, p; Barkdall, lf; Bourne, ss; Roberts, 1b; Hilliard, rf; Flores, 2b; Terrazone, 3b; Easton, cf.

In Saturday's game the Verdugos whitewashed the Dromogolds, score, 12 to 0.

The Verdugos made three errors and the Dromogolds eleven. Spike Hilliard struck out eleven men and after the bases were filled succeeded in clearing them three times.

Line-up: Benson, c; Hilliard, p; L. Jones, 1b; Flores, 2b; Buttrick, 3b; Reid, rf; Barkdall, cf; Rich, lf; Bourne, ss.

On Monday the Jewel City team lost to the Columbias 10 to 4.

The second game between the Verdugos and West Jefferson Merchants scored 10 to 9 in Verdugo's favor, the last run was made in the ninth inning.

Quite a crowd assembled at Fifth and Glendale avenue to see the Japanese Shan Shu team play with the Union Oil Wells combination. It took ten innings to decide the latter team the winner by a score of 5 to 4. Nearly all the runs were made on errors. The Japs showed themselves to be good sports, but their pitcher was the whole thing. They handle the ball all right, except that they can't connect it with the bat.

A DEER HUNT—SUCCESSFUL AND OTHERWISE.

Mr. C. F. Hathaway, Carl Mertens and Mr. McDonald went deer hunting up in the Big Tejonja hills last Saturday and had considerable experience. The party separated when they got into the hills and Mr. Hathaway was fortunate enough to get a shot at a buck which he brought down. It proved to be a straight-horned deer, three-years old and dressed over a hundred pounds. The kind is said to be rather unusual in this section and the head is being mounted. Mr. Mertens became hopelessly mixed up in the hills on Sunday and had to strike out for himself Saturday night, the result being that he was compelled to spend the night by himself, the total stock of food in his commissary department being one egg and a lemon. The party started out with insufficient water supply and from Saturday night until Sunday noon when they got down into the valley, were entirely without any. They reached home Sunday evening.

The dog was unmistakably suffering from an attack of the rabies, but as far as is known no one had been a victim. It appeared to be a half-breed Spitz and had no license or muzzle. So far it is unidentified.

Bulletin boards have been put in the corridors.

MR. J. J. REHART MEETS SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Saturday afternoon between Pierce and Hopper Ranch at the mouth of Hopper canyon, Mr. Jacob J. Rehart met with a painful accident.

Mr. Rehart was hauling refuse and was dumping a load of boxes over a bank when the noise frightened the horses and caused them to jolt the wagon, throwing Mr. Rehart to the ground, bruising and shaking him up very seriously.

Aside from this several steel implements which he carried in his hip pocket struck against a rock point resulting in a serious dislocation of the hip.

Mrs. Rehart left Glendale that night for Hopper Ranch and returned Sunday morning, bringing Mr. Rehart with her. Upon reaching their home on Fourth street they found Dr. C. W. Byron and Dr. Whitman of Los Angeles who immediately took the patient in charge.

At present Mr. Rehart is under the care of Mr. Harry Crutcher and is doing as well as could possibly be expected under the circumstances.

THE WAY OUT of a SOCIAL DILEMMA

Thank you, I'll Come Right Over

GETTING a fourth hand for "bridge" is only one of a thousand social uses of the Telephone, and Telephone Service promotes sociability and good fellowship because it brings neighbors closer together. Your friends all live within talking distance.

It is the same with your out-of-town friends—the universal service of the Bell System makes them your neighbors, too. Your voice can reach all by means of the Bell Long Distance Service.
